Who we share your data with.

Analytics

This website uses tracking software to monitor its visitors to enable us to better understand how they use it. This software is provided by Google Analytics which uses cookies to track visitor usage. The software will save a cookie to your computer’s hard drive in order to track and monitor your engagement and usage of the website, but will not store, save or collect personal information. So that we can monitor our site traffic patterns like-for-like, year-on-year, the User and Event Data Retention settings within our Google Analytics administration settings are currently set to never expire. We do not collect information via Google Analytics for either retargeting or advertising purposes.

Personally Identifiable Information (PII)

The Google Analytics Terms of Service, which all Google Analytics customers must adhere to, prohibits sending personally identifiable information (PII) to them. This is a policy that we expressly agree and comply with.

Anonymising IP Addresses

For your privacy and protection, our website analytics settings are set to anonymise a visitor's IP address. This means that Google Analytics will substitute the final 3 digits of any visitor's IP address with '000' so that it cannot be tracked to an accurate location. Google Analytics will be able to establish a country and perhaps a region of origin, but won't be able to isolate a more detailed location such as a specific town, city or street. Our website settings also instruct Google Analytics to refrain from tracking visitors who include a 'Do Not Track' header when browsing our site.

How long we retain your data.

If you leave a comment, the comment and its metadata are retained indefinitely. This is so we can recognize and approve any follow-up comments automatically instead of holding them in a moderation queue. Please note: Currently comments are disabled on our website.

All users can see, edit, or delete their personal information at any time (except they cannot change their username).
